The Share Your Score website is intended as a site where SolidWorks® users can share performance information for their software and hardware to inform other users of hardware configurations that are well suited to the various SolidWorks software products.

Use of this Website is Entirely Voluntary and can be Anonymous. The SolidWorks 2011 software includes performance tests any user can run to evaluate the performance of the SolidWorks software on their hardware. Why Share Your Score? One of the most frequent questions DS SolidWorks receives from its users is 'What kind of computer should I buy to run your software?' By sharing your score, you can provide specific information to users that can be helpful in their own decisions and to help make the case for their business' investment in hardware.
